

Photos

RIGHT: View of the second livestock watering well which utilizes a wind mill.

LEFT: View of some of the terrain and some of the large dirt embankments used to redirect and hold flood waters.

RIGHT: View of a control gate used to control water flow out of the dirt banks during periods of heavy rainfall.

Photos

RIGHT: View of the rangeland typical to the subject.

LEFT: View of one of the livestock wells which has been converted from a windmill powered to solar powered.

RIGHT: A view of one of the livestock waters located on the subject.

